Geof has already presented two very enjoyable and interesting seminars for our Youth EXPO attendees. His views and expertise are about managing your own mind - mindful-acceptance based intervention – for sporting success and for getting the best out of yourself and to realize your best outcomes.

This presentation is for riders, coaches, judges and anyone else who wants to know how modern thinking can help build success and confidence in your sport.

Professional Biography

Geof Boylan-Marsland is the Senior Psychologist at the South Australian Sports Institute (SASI) in Adelaide and has been working as a psychologist in high performance sport for the last 12 years. He is a graduate of Deakin University, completing a Bachelor of Science (Psychology) and also earned a Master of Psychology in Sport/Performance psychology from University of Western Sydney.

His responsibilities at SASI include working with athletes, teams and coaches in rowing, cycling (track & road), BMX, kayaking, track & field, swimming, netball, gymnastic-trampoline and athletes with a disability (AWD - Paralympic athletes). He also runs a very busy private practise (Mind Matters Psychology) in Western Adelaide, working with athletes and teams in variety of sports including netball, officiating, BMX, cycling, athletics, bowling, swimming, golf and gymnastics and is currently working with the Adelaide Thunderbirds Netball Team and Australian 'Diamonds' netballers.

Geof has worked with Olympian/Paralympian Medallists and World Champions in sprint & endurance track cycling, road cycling, track & field, equestrian, shooting, table tennis and BMX. He is also involved with coach's professional development programs at SASI and for a range of National Sporting Organisations. He also works with business people, students and corporate sector to get the best out of themselves and realize best outcomes.
